Mebien is a burgeoning player in the Baby Care Products industry, dedicated to simplifying the lives of parents by offering a range of innovative products. Our current product line includes Baby Slings, Baby Swaddle Blankets, and Beach Turkish Towels, designed to cater to the comfort and convenience of both babies and their caregivers. With a strong vision and mission, Mebien aims to establish itself as one of the top 10 Amazon brands for Baby Care Products.

Our products are meticulously crafted to meet the unique needs of our target audience, providing comfort, style, and functionality. The Baby Slings, featuring a metal ring and a long piece of fabric, ensure a comfortable and secure baby-wearing experience. Meanwhile, our Baby Swaddle Blankets serve as versatile covers and blankets for newborns, offering practicality and aesthetics. Additionally, our Beach Turkish Towels are designed for use in various settings, from the beach and pool to picnics and spas, offering a blend of style and functionality. While Mebien is currently geolocated in the USA, we have ambitious plans to expand our footprint into the UK and Australia in the near future, catering to a global audience of parents seeking quality baby care products. Our immediate focus is on establishing a strong presence in the USA market.

In a competitive landscape, Mebien faces competition from established brands in the niche, including Moby, Momcozy, Nalakai, and Hip Baby Wrap, who are also prominent on Amazon. However, we are confident that our commitment to quality, innovation, and customer-centricity will set us apart. Our primary business objective is to provide high-quality baby care products that resonate with American customers. We have conducted thorough market research and identified two distinct niches within our target market:

Baby Products for Bathroom and Bedroom: In this niche, we target women aged 27 to 35, currently pregnant or expecting, with an income range of $2,500 to $2,900 per month. These women have an affinity for Middle Eastern-inspired clothing patterns, possibly due to their own Middle Eastern background or heritage. They prefer handcrafted, non-technological products and have a strong need for supportive baby carriers to ensure comfort and health. Additionally, we cater to their male partners who share these characteristics.

Beach Turkish Towel: This niche includes young adults and middle-aged individuals aged 25 to 35, with an average minimum monthly income of $1,800. They enjoy traveling, especially in tropical regions, and value the compactness of towels for beach trips and hikes. Our towels also serve as decorative items and indoor accessories. We identify a shared interest in Middle Eastern-inspired clothing pattern designs among this audience, potentially due to their Middle Eastern background or appreciation for the aesthetics.

To fuel our growth and expansion efforts, we are seeking an investment of $20,000 from potential investors who share our vision and believe in the potential of Mebien's products. Our pricing strategy is competitive and transparent, with Baby Slings priced at $49.99, Swaddle Blankets at $19.99, and Beach Turkish Towels at $22.99. In our first year of operation, we anticipate generating $590,000 in revenue, supported by careful financial planning. We have a monthly office rent expense of $800. To ensure our success, we have outlined a strategic approach, including maintaining our current business status, developing product and marketing strategies, and closely monitoring customer feedback and testing. Mebien is committed to becoming a leading brand in the baby care products industry, providing innovative and high-quality solutions to meet the evolving needs of parents and caregivers.

With a clear vision and a compelling mission, Mebien aspires to establish itself as a prominent name among the top 10 Amazon brands specializing in Baby Care Products.

Our product portfolio is characterized by thoughtful design and meticulous craftsmanship. The Baby Slings, featuring a combination of metal rings and long, soft fabric, are engineered to provide both comfort and safety, ensuring a secure and snug baby-wearing experience. In parallel, our Baby Swaddle Blankets offer a versatile solution, serving as practical covers or cozy blankets for newborns, combining functionality with aesthetics. Additionally, our Beach Turkish Towels are versatile and multipurpose, serving as ideal companions for various settings, ranging from beach outings and poolside relaxation to picnics, spa days, and even as fashionable accessories.

While Mebien is currently headquartered in the United States, we harbor ambitions to expand our presence and reach into the markets of the United Kingdom and Australia, enriching the lives of parents across borders. Nevertheless, our immediate focus remains on consolidating our position and reputation within the competitive and dynamic U.S. market.

In the midst of formidable competition from established brands, including Moby, Momcozy, Nalakai, and Hip Baby Wrap, all of which are prominent players on Amazon, Mebien stands out by virtue of its unwavering commitment to quality, innovation, and a customer-centric approach. We are determined to carve our niche and set new standards for excellence in the industry.

Our central business objective revolves around the provision of high-quality baby care products that deeply resonate with American consumers. Extensive market research has enabled us to identify two distinctive niches within our target demographic:

Niche #1: Baby Products for Bathroom and Bedroom

Here, we cater to expectant women aged 27 to 35, typically with monthly incomes ranging from $2,500 to $2,900. These individuals exhibit a strong affinity for Middle Eastern-inspired clothing patterns and designs, often due to their own Middle Eastern heritage or background. They prioritize handcrafted, non-technological products and have a pressing need for supportive baby carriers to ensure both comfort and health. Additionally, we extend our offerings to include their male partners who share these preferences and requirements.

Niche #2: Beach Turkish Towel

Within this niche, we engage with young adults and middle-aged individuals aged 25 to 35, characterized by an average minimum monthly income of $1,800. These consumers are passionate about travel, especially to tropical destinations, and highly value the portability and functionality of towels during beach trips and hikes. Our towels also find utility as decorative items and indoor accessories. Furthermore, we identify a common appreciation for Middle Eastern-inspired clothing pattern designs among this segment, potentially influenced by their own Middle Eastern heritage or an appreciation for the aesthetic appeal.

To fuel our growth and expansion endeavors, we are actively seeking investment, with an appeal for $20,000 from potential stakeholders who share our vision and recognize the immense potential within Mebien's product offerings. Our pricing strategy is anchored in fairness and transparency, with Baby Slings available at $49.99, Swaddle Blankets at $19.99, and Beach Turkish Towels at $22.99. As we embark on our journey, we have meticulously crafted financial projections, with an anticipated revenue of $590,000 in the inaugural year, while also accounting for our monthly office rent expense of $800.

To ensure our trajectory toward success, we have charted a comprehensive strategic roadmap that encompasses the preservation of our current business status, the development of robust product and marketing strategies, and an unwavering commitment to closely monitoring customer feedback and conducting rigorous testing. MARKET ANALYSIS

INDUSTRY OVERVIEW

The global baby care products market size was valued at USD 18.17 billion in 2020 and is expected to expand at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.3% from 2021 to 2028. The market has been witnessing rapid growth as consumer preferences are shifting towards high-quality, utility-driven, and premium baby products. Moreover, there has been an increasing focus on vegan, paraben, and synthetic-free products due to the rising levels of awareness regarding the harmful effects of synthetic products. The COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted the supply chain and influenced consumers' shopping patterns. According to the annual report published by Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc., the baby care segment observed a decline of 9.4% in 2020, in comparison to 2019. The company reported the decline due to the COVID-19, SKU rationalization, and other factors. Whereas Kimberly-Clark (KCWW) observed an increase in the sales of its baby and child care products in 2020.

The demand for baby care products is rapidly increasing in the U.S. owing to the rising concerns related to the safety and wellness of infants. An increasing number of parents are seeking hygienic and moisture-based products, such as wipes and creams, to prevent skin infections and treat diaper rashes. Furthermore, parents are spending more on infant care since after the pandemic. For instance, according to the figures published on Move.org in April 2021, parents in the District of Columbia are spending 26.3% of their income on infant care, followed by 24.4% in Massachusetts, 21.9% in Indiana, and 21.3% in New York as of March 2021.

Increasing participation of women in the workforce, the evolving parenting preferences, growing independence, and spending capacity across the globe are expected to boost the overall market growth. According to an article published on CNBC LLC in January 2020, American parents with children under the age of five are spending over USD 42 billion on early child care and education.

Owing to the growing concerns regarding infants' delicate and sensitive skin, a growing number of parents are opting for baby care products, such as body washes, diaper creams, and baby wipes, which are made from plant-based and organic ingredients. Moreover, these products offer numerous benefits that help in treating skin allergies, discomfort, rashes, and other similar skin-related issues. Such instances are likely to significantly boost the market growth over the forecast period.

Increasing investments in the research & development of products, coupled with the growing trend of natural, organic ingredient-based baby care products, have encouraged manufacturers to introduce new products through popular supermarkets and specialty stores. For instance, in August 2021, prominent baby care brand Baby Dove collaborated with Walmart to launch its new line of shampoo, conditioner, baby wash, and skin cream for infants' delicate skin and multiracial babies. Such product offerings are expected to positively influence market growth.

PRODUCT INSIGHTS

Baby toiletries/hair care held the largest revenue share of over 65.0% in 2020 and is expected to maintain its lead over the forecast period. Baby shampoos, conditioners, washes, and wipes are among the most used items as these are frequently applied on infants' skin. Apart from benefits such as instant hydration and refreshed skin, these products are easy-to-use and are a hassle-free and quick solution for combating issues related to dryness, infections, and diaper rashes.

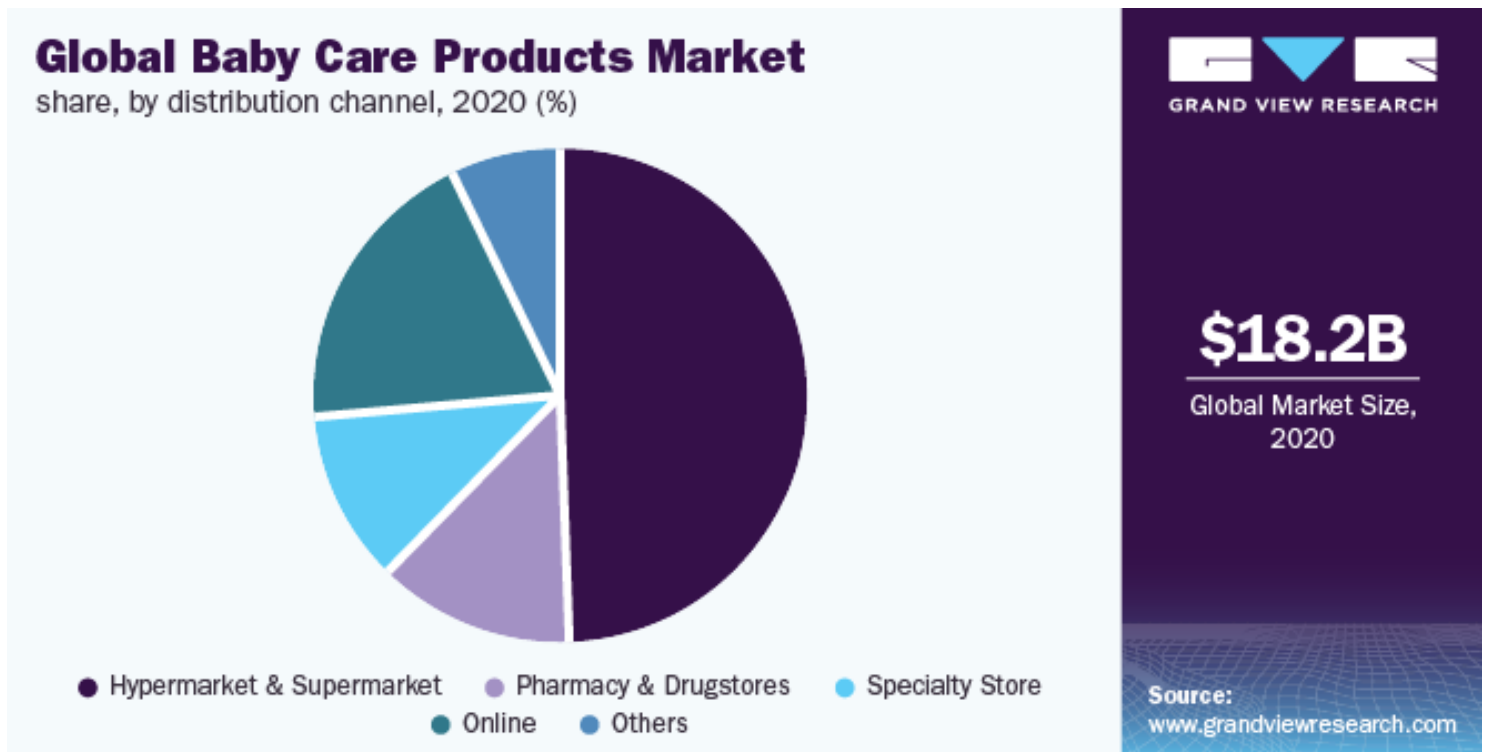

The skin care segment is projected to register the fastest CAGR of 5.1% from 2021 to 2028. The segment includes various types of moisturizers, face creams, powders, and massage oils. Several informed parents are preferring to shop for products that contain antioxidants, anti-bacterial, and antifungal properties that are beneficial for sensitive skin.

In the baby toiletries/hair care segment, the body wash segment held the largest share of over 30.0% in 2020 and is expected to witness significant growth from 2021 to 2028. Body washes have been gaining popularity across the globe, especially in the Asia Pacific and North America, due to the rapidly increasing population in these regions, which is encouraging an increasing number of consumers to opt for baby care products for their infants.

DISTRIBUTION CHANNEL INSIGHTS

The hypermarket and supermarket captured the largest revenue share of over 45.0% in 2020. These stores offer significant advantages to consumers, such as freedom of selection, lower prices, and high visibility of international brands, which makes them a suitable platform for all customer groups to purchase baby care products.

The specialty store segment is projected to register the fastest CAGR of 4.9% from 2021 to 2028. Some customers choose to buy baby products from these stores because of the ease of purchase, extensive network, and the ability to purchase the same products on a regular basis. Moreover, these stores take advantage of the popularity of niche products, like organic, natural, and herbal items.

The online segment is projected to witness significant growth from 2021 to 2028. The online sales of baby care products are estimated to witness growth during the forecast period. Prominent e-commerce giants such as Amazon and Walmart are the leading online retailers of baby care products.

REGIONAL INSIGHTS

Asia Pacific held the largest share of over 40.0% in 2020 and is expected to witness the fastest growth over the forecast period. According to the National Statistics Bureau of China, over 17 million infants were born in 2016. Similarly, as per the UN report, the population of India is 1.37 billion and is projected to grow over 270 million by 2050. These indicators will drive the adoption of baby care products in the region.

Central and South America is expected to expand at a CAGR of 4.4% from 2021 to 2028. Manufacturers in this region are engaged in the development of baby care products that contain a mixture of natural and organic ingredients, in an attempt to tap into new customer demographics.

North America is expected to observe considerable growth from 2021 to 2028. The presence of well-established product manufacturers in North America, such as Unilever, Kimberly-Clark (KCWW), and Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc., along with the growing infrastructure facilities for retailers, is expected to support the demand for baby care products.

KEY COMPANIES & MARKET SHARE INSIGHTS

The market is characterized by the presence of a few established players and new entrants. Companies along with prominent retailers have been expanding their product portfolios by incorporating new and innovative baby care products to widen their consumer base. For instance, in September 2021, Coty Inc. collaborated with a popular brand Kylie Baby in order to launch a vegan, cruelty-free, and gluten-free range of baby products including shampoos, conditioners, and lotions. The products are marketed at the brand's direct-to-consumer website. In 2020, the most recognized brands of Johnson & Johnson-Aveeno Baby and Johnsons Baby reported an increase of 3.7% in sales of baby care products to consumers specifically in the U.S., in comparison to 2019.

With a shifting focus on natural ingredients, product manufacturers are coming up with cotton-based baby care products. For instance, in October 2018, Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc. launched a new line of cotton-infused newborn wash and shampoo and lotion under its 'Cotton Touch' line. Some prominent players in the global baby care products market include: Johnson & Johnson, Procter & Gamble (P&G), Kimberly-Clark (KCWW), Honasa Consumer Pvt. USA:

Unlike China and India, the United States population is expected to continue to grow throughout the century with no foreseeable decline. By 2067, the U.S. population is expected to surpass 400 million people. The population growth in the United States is mainly attributed to high rates of immigration, which have decreased since 2016, and the natural increase (the difference between births and deaths).

The United States population grows on average about 0.9% every year. The population grew 0.60% in 2019; the lowest rate the U.S. has had in a century. This is because of a decrease in the number of total births over the year. Additionally, more post-World War II baby boomers are reaching old age, increasing the number of deaths.

Currently, the United States is 60.4% white. According to Pew Research Center, the country's racial profile will be vastly different, by 2055. Whites will remain the single largest racial group in the US, but they will no longer be the majority. Growth in the Hispanic and the Asian populations in the US are predicted to almost triple over the next 40 years. By 2055, the breakdown is estimated to be 48% White, 24% Hispanic, 14% Asian, and 13% Black.

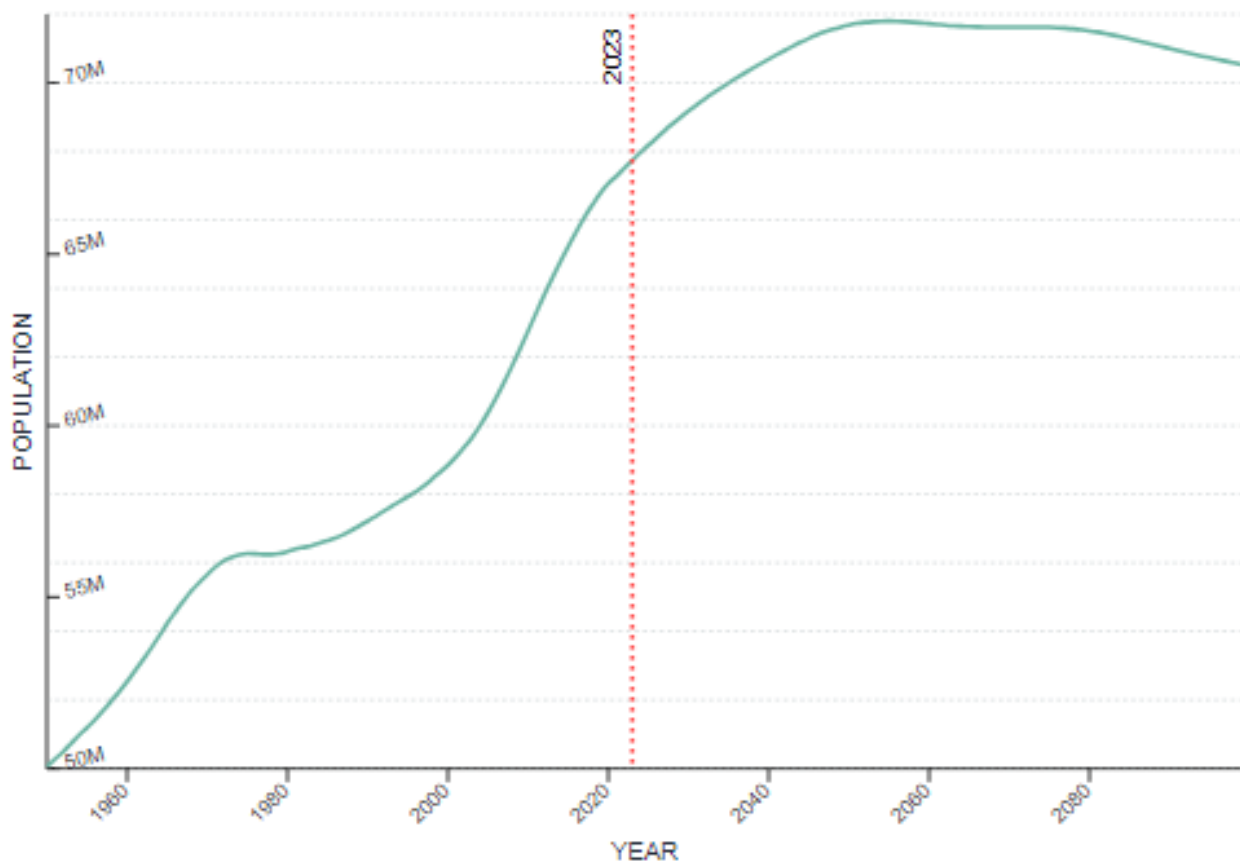

As of 2015, 14% of the United States population is foreign-born, compared to just 5% in 1965. Nearly 39 million immigrants have come to the US since 1965, with most coming from Asia and Latin America. Behind Mexico, China and India have the second-highest foreign-born populations in the United States. The current Chinese population in the USA is 3.8 million, and the Indian population is 4.4 million. The 2015 Census Report predicts that the percentage of the US population that is foreign-born will continue to increase, reaching 19% by 2060. This increase will account for a large share of the overall population growth.

By 2060, the US population will, on average, be older than it is today. Almost one in four people will be 65 or older. At the same time, the percentage of people who are working age (18-64) is likely to fall from 63% today to 52% in 2060. This will have huge implications for society as younger people work to fund the pensions and healthcare of the older generation.

UK

United Kingdom Population 2023 (Live)

67,795,088

Current projections have the United Kingdom's population surpassing 75 million in 2060 and experiencing continued growth throughout the century reaching 77.97 million in 2099. The United Kingdom is expected to surpass the population of Germany around 2080.

The population growth rate in the UK is relatively slow at 0.6% per year. The fertility rate is only 1.8 births per woman, below the population replacement rate of 2.1 births per woman. However, a large part of this increase in the population is net migration, which was 626,000 in 2019. For the fifth year in a row, net migration was a larger contributor to the population change than births and deaths were.

Based on data from the last Census taken in 2011, the majority of the UK's population is situated in England, which accounts for just under 84% of the total population. Scotland trails behind with 8.4% of the population, followed by Wales at 4.8%, and Northern Island at 2.9%.

The United Kingdom has a diverse set of overseas born populations, with the largest 5 contributing countries being:

- Poland (831,000)
- India (795,000)
- Pakistan (503,000)
- Ireland (382,000)
- Germany (286,000)

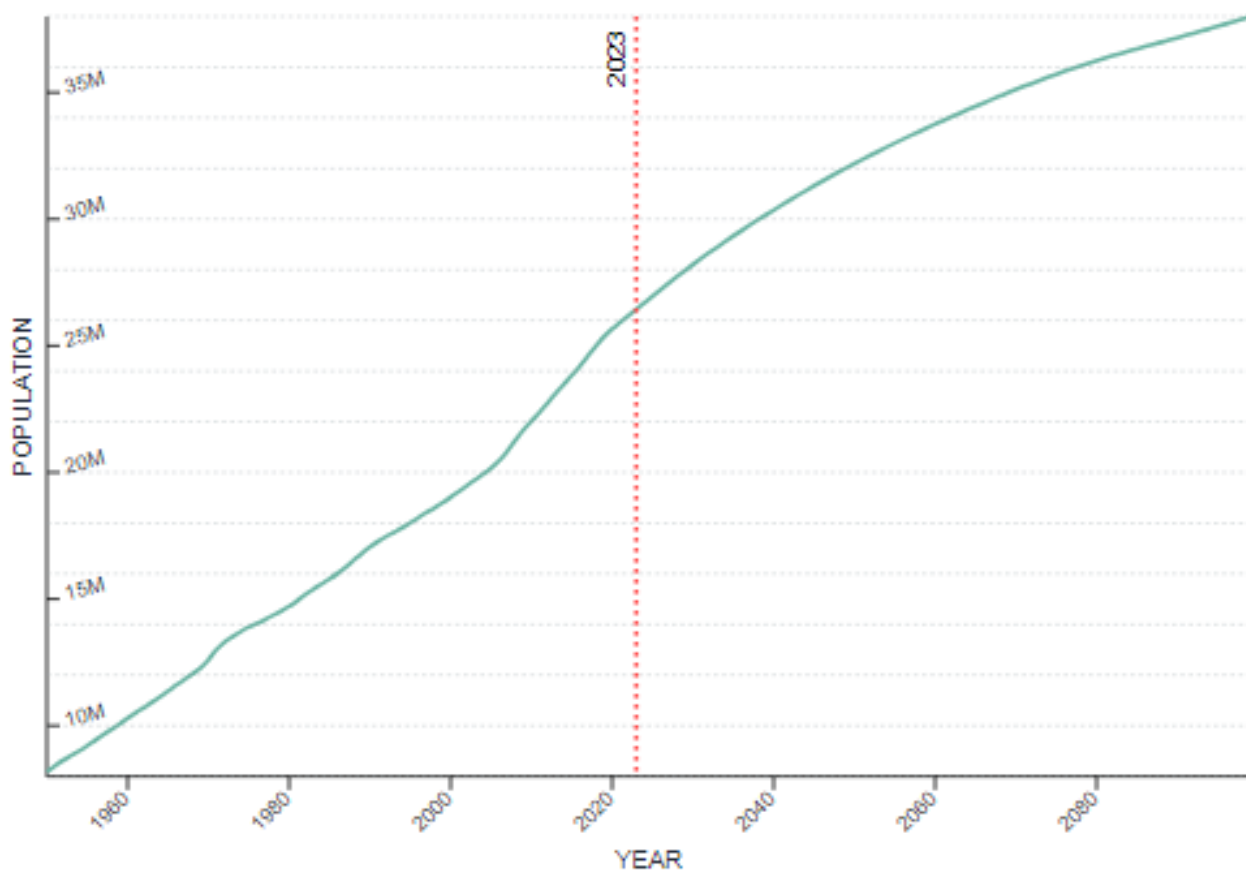

The UK has a high literacy rate of over 99% among residents aged 15 and older. This is attributed to the universal public education provided to UK residents, both in primary and secondary schools. The most used languages in the United Kingdom are the English, Polish, and Welsh languages.

The total fertility rate of the United Kingdom is 1.92 children per woman, according to data from 2012. The number of children born to foreign-born mothers has increased to encompass over one-quarter of the total population, and statistics from 2014 show that the fertility of foreign-born women living in the UK is higher than native women of child-bearing age.

Australia

Australia Population 2023 (Live)

26,506,303

Current projections indicate that Australia's population will continue to steadily grow for the rest of the century. Australia's population is about 25.5 million as of 2020 and is projected to grow to 42.68 million people by 2099. Australia's population growth rate is 1.18%, adding about 296,000 people to the population over 2019's population. This is a result of both net migration, which has been about 150,000 per year for the past few years, and natural increase. Australia's fertility rate of 1.83 births per woman is below the population replacement rate of 2.1 births per woman.

Australia ranks fifth among OECD countries for population growth. As the other OECD countries with high growth rates, Australia has a strong labor demand that cannot be met from domestic sources; therefore, mass migration occurs.

The Australian population census of 2011 showed that of the 21,507,717 declared residents, 25.4% of the population claimed their ancestry to be Australian. Those that claimed to be of English ancestry represented 25.9% of the total population. Other figures included Irish at 7.5%, Scottish at 6.4% and Italian at 3.3%.

Australia's population has quadrupled since World War I, mostly due to immigration. From the end of World War II through 2000, nearly 6 million immigrants came to Australia, accounting for 2 out of every 7 Australians. At the last census in 2011, over 30% of Australians were born in another country and over 46% had at least one overseas-born parent. The most common immigration sources in Australia are the United Kingdom, New Zealand, China, India, and Vietnam.

In 2011, the official indigenous population of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders was over 548,000, or 2.5% of the total population, up from 116,000 in 1976. This increase is due in part to the fact that many people with at least some indigenous heritages were undercounted before. As with other developed countries, Australia's demographics are shifting toward an older population. The median age in Australia is 37 years.

With the sales marketing strategy adopted, it is assumed that this will yield an increase in the subsequent years of business operations, thereby, causing the revenue for each year to increase too.

The volume of revenue influences the profit that will be made during the year, therefore revenue generated in the course of running the business results in an increase in profit made by the business after taking care of all expenses.
